We hold to the use of both gold and silver as the standard money of the country, and to the coinage of both gold and silver without discrimination against either meta, or charge for mintage, but the dollar unit of coinage of both metals must be of equal intrinsic value or be adjusted through international aggreement, or by safeguards of legislation as shall insure the maintenance of the parity of the two metals and the equal power of every dollar all times in the markets and in payment of debts; and we demand that all paper currency shall be kept at pa, with and redeemable in such coin, we insist pon this policy as specialy necessary for faithful discharge of my duty to

The Official Proceedings of the Chicago convention, page 95, show that, on a call for the yeas and nays, the motion of he gentleman from CoE'ado (Mr. Pat terson) was lost. So the convention des clined to put a declaration for FREE coinage in the platform.

THEN AND NOW.

The man who, in 1869, gave utterance to the sentiments quoted below, and who has since become a champion of the doctrine of high protective duties, is not entitled to be called a statesman, nor is anything he may now say on the same subject, worthy the consideration of intelligent men. This man's name is John Sherman, and here is what he said in 1869:

"Every advance toward a free exchange of commodities is an advance in civilization; every obstruction to a civilization, every obstruction to a free exchange is born of the same narrow, despotie spirit which planted castles upon the Rhine to plunder peaceful com-merce; every obstruction to commerce is a tax on consumption; of a case of years standing, after every facility to a free exchange cheapens commodities, increases trade and production, and prometes physicians. It is instructive in this connection, to read the following reference to Senator Sherman which we clip from the Cincinnati Coms mercial Gazette of the 22d inst: "He," Sherman, "means to fight the battle of the tariff in the Seaate, and we may be sure he will gives quite rest and peaceful sleep. display in that contest his usual Sold by Robinson Bros.
